From Ankit Banerjee•July 16, 2019 are plenty of reasons to get an Amazon Fire TV Stick. It allows you to make a normal TV smart and gives you easy access to all your video streaming applications. Although you have a smart TV, the Fire Stick interface is probably faster and less buggy than anything on TV. More importantly, it's cheap. If you bought one and are ready to start, here's all you need to know about how to set up an Amazon Fire Stick! What you need to start The first thing you have to do is make sure the Fire Stick will work with the TV. If it is a HD (or higher) resolution it is good to go and has an HDMI port. You can bypass the HDMI port requirement with the right AV HDMI converter, but mileage can vary. You will need a good internet connection. Each video streaming application has similar minimum speed requirements. For example, Amazon Prime Video needs a 1Mbps connection for SD content. HD and Full HD impact that minimum to 3.5Mbps and rises up to 15Mbps for 4K content. Obviously, faster will always be better. Of course, you will also need an Amazon Fire TV Stick. Currently it is price at $39.99 for version 1080p and brings you an additional $10 for the 4K-capable device. Keep in mind that discounts and special offers are often available that make the Fire Stick even more convenient. Already having an Amazon account makes the configuration process a faster touch. When you purchase your device on Amazon, you will be asked if you want to connect the Fire Stick to your account. How to set Amazon Fire Stick Connecting theUSB in the power brick and the micro-USB port of the Amazon Fire TV Stick. Connect the Fire Stick to an HDMI port and connectpower brick in a near outlet. The cable in the box is long enough. But some may need to be an extra long cable to meet their needs. Turn on TV and use the Source button on the TV remote control (not Fire Stick remote) to open the correct HDMI channel. In some cases, the door will recognize the device and say "Amazon Fire Stick". While the charger (may take a few minutes,) set the Fire Stick remote. Insert two AAA batteries into the remote control. Find an arrow sign on the back. Place your thumb on that sign and gently push to slide the back cover. To use the remote, use the ring around the central button to navigate around the user interface. Press the central key when necessary to accept a selection. Once the Fire Stick is loaded, press the play/pause button to start the configuration process. Related: Best VPNs for Amazon Fire TV Stick — Free and Paid Options First, select a language. You will then need to connect to a Wi-Fi network. The device automatically scans and lists nearby networks. Enter your Wi-Fi password (if necessary.) If you have already connected the Fire Stick to your account, the device will ask for confirmation. Otherwise, you will need to add your account information. You can also create a new account if necessary. Once you have completed the registration procedure, you will be asked if you want to save the Wi-Fi password on your Amazon account. If you are or are planning to buy more Amazon products, it might be a good idea to say yes, here. You can also set parental controls if necessary. Done! How to install apps on Amazon Fire Stick On the homepage, go to the top menu bar and press right to go to the Apps section. You can scroll through the feature apps,go right to find the categories of games and apps. Click an app you want to add to the fire stick and select get. Keep in mind that not every application is free. If you know what you are looking for, go to the search section (go left from home in the upper bar. ) type the app name and select the top search result. If you're notapp is available, you will be able to download it. This is all you need to know about how to set up an Amazon Fire Stick! Source: Amazon Two new Amazon Fire TV Sticks have just broken cover to Amazon's big summer hardware event. The first new device, the new Amazon Fire TV brings HDR compatibility and Dolby Atmos for $39.99. Amazon is also bringing a Fire TV Stick Lite for $29.99. Amazon today announced the new Fire TV, a new Amazon Fire TV Stick that Amazon says is a more powerful device than the older one. In particular, it will be 50% more powerful with Full HD streaming and HDR compatibility. There is also Dolby Atmos support for a more enjoyable audio experience. It will be shipped with Amazon's Alexa Remote with dedicated hardware buttons for key hardware functions. Amazon price this device to $39.99 and release it "later this month." If you want something cheaper, Amazon also launched the new Fire TV Stick Lite. It is still 50% more powerful than the old Fire TV Stick, and you will find the same full-HD streaming support with HDR, but there is no Dolby Atmos support. It will return you $29.99 and begin to ship "latest this month". He will be born with the Alexa Voice Remote Lite. By typing Amazon's new ecological initiatives, these new products will consume 50% less power than the old Fire TV Stick. Source: Amazon has also announced a new Fire TV experience that will come to devices later this year. It says it will be a more personalized experience with support for up to 6 discrete profiles and a focus on Alexa for navigation. The retail giant is not the only big company to release renewed streaming sticks in autumn. Xiaomi just launched a new Mi TV Stick last month, and Google should be launching a new Chromecast with Google TV at the next streaming event of the week. It doesn't matter which brandhave, there are definitely a lot of options in the previous months. That's all Amazon announced during its September 2020 hardware event Amazon's Amazon'sFire TV stick is twice as fast as last year's model and comes with an updated remote control for easy access to TV controls. But it's still only 1080p. Amazon's latest HDMI dongle is its cheaper Fire TV stick ever. At $30, the Fire TV Stick Lite dispenses with additional controls of its main counterpart, but still gets the job done. We can get a commission for purchases using our links.
